Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 24 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain moving southeast with some heavy showers in central parts.

Today:
South and east Scotland and north England seeing some good sunshine and warm here. Some mostly light rain to the south but brightening up leading to some heavy showers for Wales and the Midlands. More widespread rain for the northwest.

Tonight:
Rain and showers continuing southeast across much of the UK with some strengthening winds in the north. Becoming drier for Northern Ireland and west Scotland.

Friday:
Rain clearing much of England and Wales but heavy showers developing in southeast. Rain continuing for east Scotland and northeast England where much colder than Thursday. Mostly fine Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain or showers become confined to southern areas Saturday, lasting into Sunday here. Many other areas likely to become settled and warm. Potential for heavy rain in the south Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.